Notes on Parental Responsibility

When section B of the form, the following may be useful:-

Married/Separated/Divorced Parents – Both have parental responsibility for the child, even if there are no custody orders etc. Living apart from the child makes no difference. Only adoption removes parental responsibility.

Unmarried Parent – ONLY the mother has parental responsibility unless: the parents have made a parental responsibility agreement OR the father has obtained a parental responsibility order from the court.

All Other Adults – This includes step-parents and so on, living with a child. They will only have parental responsibility if they have adopted the child or become a legal guardian. There may also be a few adults who have parental responsibility through a "custodianship order" put in place before the Children Act came in to force
